

USA FREESTYLE SKIING OLYMPIC HISTORY

US Olympic History: Freestyle skiing, one of the so-called extreme sports, debuted as a medal sport in 1992 with moguls competition at Albertville, although it had been a demonstration sport at Calgary in 1988, with three events – moguls, aeriels, and the no-longer contested ballet, or acroski. Since then the United States has dominated the sport at the Winter Olympics, winning the most medals and gold medals overall, the most medals and gold medals by men, and the most gold medals by women. The US has won medals in moguls and aeriels for men and women, but did not win any medals in skier-cross, a relatively new event, at its debut in Vancouver in 2010 – in fact, there were no US women entered in that event in 2010. There will be two new events on the program at Sochi – halfpipe and slopestyle.
